WELCOME LETTER

ALUSB Founder and CEO, Fred Swaniker, welcomes you.

PROGRAMMES & COURSES

Grooming Africa's business leaders in a relevant, powerful and innovative way.

OUR FACULTY

World-class curriculum delivered by leading experts in business across the globe.

SISTER ORGANISATIONS

Leveraging a decade of pan-African leadership and networks.

“My vision is that the ALUSB MBA will produce world-class African business leaders and entrepreneurs who will drive the continent’s prosperity.”

-Fred Swaniker

A key turning point in my career as a business leader was when I went to Stanford University to do my MBA. It was an amazing two years, during which I was able to flesh out my entrepreneurial ideas, such as writing the plan for the African Leadership Academy, as well as being able to enhance my business acumen and grow as a leader.

Over the years, I've wondered what it would take for Africa's rising business leaders to get such world-class training. Because, let's face it, for the vast majority of Africans, schools like Stanford are out of reach due to (i) cost ($200,000); (ii) time (2 full years out of work); and (iii) accessibility (only 3-5% of each enrolled class is typically taken from Africa).

This is why I am excited to personally invite you to apply to our MBA programme at the ALU School of Business. But let me warn you: this programme is not for everybody. It's for the mavericks, the risk-takers, and those who aim to change the world by going beyond the ordinary. We have designed this MBA based on what we do best at the African Leadership Group: developing you as a leader (most business schools focus only on business theory). We also designed it to be far more relevant to Africa. Also, because it's part-time, you will be able to immediately apply learnings to your work and witness the tangible impact. Finally, at a cost of only $15,000 per annum, it is far more affordable than what I paid at Stanford!

On top of all this, you don't have to compromise on quality. It's world-class: we leverage curricula from Wharton, McKinsey Academy, and the Drucker Institute. The programme is delivered by professors like Catherine Duggan, an award-winning professor I recruited from Harvard Business School to serve as our Vice Dean alongside an 'all-star cast' of African CEO's that will serve as adjunct faculty.

You simply don't want to miss this opportunity. Apply today. There's no cost to the application. We've designed our application process to actually give you a taste of our curriculum, so the worst case is that you'll learn something you can apply immediately at work.

I personally look forward to meeting you soon and to helping you develop into a game-changing business leader who will shape your organization's destiny and make this "The African Century".

Fred Swaniker

DOING BUSINESS IN AFRICA

UNDERSTAND. NAVIGATE. CAPITALISE.

Doing Business in Africa (DBIA) will help you to see and unlock unique opportunities on the continent. By combining original ALUSB case studies of African firms, first-hand experience from African business leaders, and real-world problems for you to analyse and solve, DBIA will teach you strategies and tactics for understanding, navigating, and capitalising on the opportunities and challenges of doing business in Africa. You will not only learn from ALUSB's unique, research-driven insights about what it takes to be successful in Africa, but you will be challenged to make your own contribution to the vibrant new story of African business.

“An increasingly pan-African market must develop its own class of pan-African business leaders. As firms in Africa do more and more business across borders, their managers must have knowledge about innovations and best practices drawn from many African countries – as well as professional networks that span the continent. They must, moreover, be able to do all of this with a global perspective, understanding not only how global trends will affect African firms and markets, but also how and where their own firms can expand beyond the continent.”

- CATHERINE DUGGAN
